“Predictabull” Moves

By Rev. Donald L. Perryman, D.Min.
The Truth Contributor

... Some white people are so accustomed to operating at a competitive advantage that when the playing field is level, they feel handicapped.

- Nathan McCall

D. Michael Collins' replacement of police chief Derrick Diggs with Lieutenant Bill Moton, another African American, was a move too obvious to be concealed and too apparent to be disputed.

After the announcement of the Collins cabinet, Moton's photograph and image were put on media blast three consecutive days. Was there a press conference or news visuals for Chief of Staff Bob Reinbolt? For Department of Neighborhoods Director Tom Kroma, Public Services Director Bill Franklin or the remainder of the appointees? Nada. Diddly squat. Nary a public news image, either in print or on television depicting these or any other of the Collins cabinet, was seen.

Why so much black face time for one person and no exposure for the remaining all white executive team?

I smell the strong unmistakable odor of efforts to please the black community by giving the “impression” that the mayor-elect is accepting of racial diversity. However, the showcasing of the appointment of a lone and (little known) African-American team member while other current and competent black captains/directors are getting “Timberland'd up” behind the scenes is a strategy of repression as old as the hills.

While we are focused on the police chief, Collins' sleight of hand has eliminated every black administrator in the City of Toledo. Those African Americans not forced to resign have been demoted to subordinate positions or forced to retire within the next few months. Should black City Council members wink and nod, Collins also plans to reduce both Affirmative Action and Human Resources from a department to a division, under Chief of Staff Reinbolt's control.

These moves will have a dramatic negative impact on the cause of diversity at the City. At the division level, authority for decision-making and budgets will reside in the hands of a nearly all-male white staff at least two levels above any minority administrator. This certainly will water down the integrity of Affirmative Action and eliminate the procedural safeguards to ensure that all people and employees are treated fairly. In addition, general hiring decisions will perhaps be based more upon mayoral or chief of staff dictates than on qualifications.

Yet, what may be most odious or execrable about the Moton move may be that which is right under our noses.

Apparently, Moton's promotion to chief of police was something that the mayor-elect really didn't want to do but felt that he had no current options other than to put up with it for a year. The word on the street is that Don Kenney, current deputy chief – pro tem or Captain George Kral are actually being targeted as the permanent replacement for Diggs, while Moton, a well-liked and respected section leader, is merely a politically-manipulated, one-year token until Collins can “creep” his own man in.

For certain, Moton will have his challenges. The very day of his appointment, the patrolmen's union came on television and stated, “although we supported Collins, what this (appointment) means is that the union is not going to be supporting our new chief.”

You can add the captains and deputy chiefs that Moton leaped over to get the job to the union's apprehension. Although Diggs considers Moton “my boy,” the rank and file didn't want to see Diggs leave. The possible divided loyalties, cliques and anger of the past could return and undermine the high level of department morale that Diggs built during his tenure.

In addition, Moton should not expect the full support from the mayor-elect, if he is there to be a figurehead holding the position until the heat is off Collins. Diggs has left Moton with great technology, staffing levels, trust and support in the community and other effective policing tools and valuable resources. No doubt the chief-to-be will want to continue what Diggs has started, but this agenda may not sit well with Collins.

If it appears that Moton, a proud ex-marine, is not truly running the police department and that he is merely a placeholder for the next white guy, it might not be a very long tenure. And God forbid, should Collins yell, talk down or start lecturing, which he has been known to do, it will probably accomplish its intended objective – to hasten Moton's quick exit.

Will the black community and other minorities continue to be fooled?

Diana Ruiz-Krause, the highest-ranking Hispanic in the Toledo police department has already been unceremoniously demoted in the paper by the mayor-elect. Moton, incidentally, was not consulted about the move. So it appears that he is, in fact, not in control and that Collins and his staff are going around Moton to talk directly to other police personnel on departmental matters because they already have plans for who they want as the permanent chief of police.

The community, therefore, should closely watch who is “announced,” by Moton or others, as being promoted to new deputy chief. It will likely be George Kral or Captain James O'Bryant. One of these two is likely to have been Collins' choice to replace Diggs all along.

While either will likely do an excellent job, if that's whom you want to make chief, Mayor Collins, then “keep it gangsta” son, and just do it! We've already peeped you.

The St. Paul Youth Department – “For the Love of God and Books”

By Pastor James Willis, Sr
Guest Column

“For the Love of God and Books” is the message that is being conveyed to the youth at the St. Paul Missionary Baptist church. The children at St. Paul, during their regular Thursday night Bible study, were blessed to receive books, books and more books.

These books represented all ages and grade levels.

This program was made possible through the tenacious efforts of Hubie Pitts of the Historic Third Baptist Church, who has a deep and abiding passion for children. Pitts continues to work with the Reading Is Fundamental program, seeking to encourage our children to develop a passion for reading. Because of her efforts books were donated and distributed to the children of St. Paul of all ages and grade levels on Thursday, November 21, 2013.

This event was well attended by many children as well as supportive adults showing their concern for the well-being of the children of the church and community.

Madelyn Hampton, an author, and member of St. Paul spoke with the youth concerning writing and publishing books. Deaconess Gertrude Green, an author also, was present to inspire and encourage the youth.

An artistic demonstration was given by the talented J’Vann Winfield also a member of St. Paul. Winfield demonstrated for

Soulful Santa A Success

By Angelita Cruz Bridges, Editor/Historian

Toledo Chapter of Jack and Jill of America, Incorporated
Special to The Truth

Merry Christmas! The Toledo Chapter of Jack and Jill of America, Incorporated reflects on its spirit of community service and giving during this holiday season at its annual Soulful Santa event held last week.

Mothers of the Toledo Chapter of Jack and Jill and their children, along with fathers, have long enjoyed this special season of blessings and giving by providing a day of fun for some 150 Boys & Girls Clubs of Toledo youth.

A Christmas party and community service project, Soulful Santa is held annually during the month of December to allow the chapter time to socialize during the holiday season while focusing on what the season is really about - giving.

This year, the event was held at the Boys & Girls Clubs of Toledo. Attended by some 150 youth from Boys & Girls Clubs, and 15 Jack and Jill Toledo families, the Christmas party included cookie decorating, holiday crafts, line dancing, and a visit from a very jolly and downright soulful Santa.

The highlight of the event was a jolly ole Soulful Santa handing out handmade fleece scarves, made by the children of all ages of Jack and Jill, as presents to the children at the Boys & Girls Clubs. At the close of the event, children participated in a raffle for prizes such as gift cards, toys, and Christmas stockings filled with goodies.

Soulful Santa Chairman and Jack and Jill/Toledo Chapter Programming Director Jovita Robertson said "The planning committee outdid itself. We worked together to make a fun event for our children and the children at the Boys & Girls Clubs of Toledo. I'm happy we were successful."

Jack and Jill of America, Incorporated was founded in 1938 in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania by Marion Stubbs Thomas. In 1946, the National Organization was incorporated and since that meeting in 1938, chapters have been organized across the entire United States. The organization is made up of mother members and is a family organization that promotes youth leadership and so much more.

Locally, the Toledo Chapter of Jack and Jill was founded in December 1952 by a group of exceptionally loving women who happened to also be dedicated mothers. Catherine Holland was the chapter's first president.

White, Kelvin Patton, Traci Mitchell-Jones, Karen Walton, Teresa McBee, Tyrone Powerz, Lena Betts and Jala Williams. ## Let's Build Our Community - One Relationship at a Time

Carla Yvette

While there are legitimate external factors that contribute to the breakdown of our community, the greatest harm comes from within. It has been said that we are our own worst enemy and if we're honest, we'd take a hard look around and acknowledge that it's true.

We are either blind to this truth or are afraid to admit that it's our own jealousies, competitiveness, in-fighting, unwillingness to support one another and all sorts of petty differences that keep us from moving forward. WE are the only force stopping us from building the type of community that we say we want. A house, a people, a community, a nation divided against itself will not stand. We can start rebuilding our community one relationship at a time.

• Women – Our "female" power is undeniable. Not only has our influence over men not diminished since the biblical days of Samson and Delilah but this same feminine quality is what allows us to forge, close, open, nurturing strong bonds with other women. This God-given "feminine ability" allows us to bond and share personal information in a checkout line with another woman we barely know and also allows us if used correctly, to transform the lives of our men for the good. The female power that we possess allows us to bring life into the world and gives us the ability to breathe life into every situation we come in contact with. Most men desire so much more from us than butt cheeks and boobs. How much more awesome and beneficial would it be to our community if we used our female power to help, uplift, support and love our men through the struggle instead of being the struggle? What would be the outcome if instead of being jealous, envious and catty with our sisters, we supported, encouraged and empowered each other?

• Men- There is no doubt an attack against black men and boys. Your identity has been reduced to that of a criminally-inclined, useless black man to be feared. Nevertheless, your role in our lives and community is invaluable and you matter. Personal responsibility however, requires that YOU understand and identify your role and the impact it has on the family and community. The natural drive within you to be conquerors, heroes and warriors, will compel you to either protect and provide for your family and loved ones, or drive you to conquer woman after woman, leaving behind fatherless sons and daughters and broken homes, thus contributing to decline of the family and ultimately the community. The choice is yours. As men, historically you have been the backbone of the family. You have been the provider, protector, teacher and leader. How much more beneficial would it be to our families and community if you found your ambition, took initiative, and stood in your place?

Once we recognize our contribution to the breakdown of our community while understanding the unique contribution each of us can make to the world, we can begin to do our part in rebuilding our community one relationship at a time.

Fuel Your New Year's Weight Loss Resolutions With Fast Results

Special to The Truth

If your scale is your worst enemy, it may be time to adopt a workable weight management strategy. A New Year is the perfect time to recommit oneself to health, wellness and shedding those extra pounds.

Experts say that fast results can help you stay motivated and see through your bigger weight loss goals.

"Early weight loss is a strong predictor of long-term weight loss," says Dr. Anthony Fabricatore, vice president of Research and Development at Nutrisystem. "Seeing immediate results can do wonders for self-efficacy."

Here are some tips for losing those crucial first five pounds quickly, so you'll be motivated to keep it up:

- Commit Yourself. Be mentally ready. Make a commitment to meet goals and eliminate temptations right from the start by getting rid of junk food in your pantry.
- Convenience Counts. Life can get in the way of dieting if convenient options aren't readily available. Have healthful ready-to-go meals and snacks on hand, particularly during dangerous times of day when cravings kick in.
- Stop guessing: Individuals make more than 200 food and beverage decisions daily, according to researchers at a leading university. Eliminate guesswork by opting for portioned, prepared meals.

For example, the new Nutrisystem My Way program, features meals free of trans fat, partially hydrogenated oils, MSG, high fructose corn syrup, aspartame and saccharine which can be combined with fresh grocery choices like salad, fruit, smart proteins, low-fat yogurt and unlimited non-starchy vegetables. After providing answers to some questions, My Way also helps determine grocery items and exercise plans built for your metabolism.

For a quick start, consider the new one-week Fast 5 kit, promising a five-pound weight loss in your first week backed by a money-back guarantee. It includes seven days of breakfasts, lunches and dinners, plus shakes with formulations for men and women to meet their unique nutritional needs.

- Keep moving: Find a regular exercise routine with which you'll stick. Stay motivated by teaming with friends. While one of the best, low-impact and low-cost forms of exercise is walking, short and intense workouts are beneficial too.

"Some evidence indicates a single, strenuous four-minute workout is as effective to improving health and fitness as a longer workout," says Meghan Nichols, registered dietician and project manager of Research and Development at Nutrisystem.

- Drink more water: Sometimes when you feel hungry, you're actually thirsty. Before eating, drink water to feel fuller. Replace sugary beverages with the good stuff -- eight glasses daily is a good target.
  - Get support. Friends and family can be great cheerleaders. And an expert dieting coach can answer your questions. Visit www.Nutrisystem.com for support, where trained counselors are available seven days a week via phone and email.
  - Track progress. Tracking your journey can help you keep focused on end goals. Make it convenient by downloading a free app you can use from your phone that features tools to plan meals and track weight, workouts and measurements.
- Give your New Year's diet resolutions more chance for long-term success by achieving quick, modest results right out of the gate.

Jim Crow Wisdom: Memory & Identity in Black America Since 1940 by Jonathan Scott Holloway

By Terri Schlichenmeyer
The Truth Contributor

You've always prided yourself on being a good storyteller.

You've always been able to craft a good tale – whether it was one of imagination, one to escape trouble, or a story with lesson added.

It's a talent you got from your parents, and they from theirs. In the new book Jim Crow Wisdom by Jonathan Scott Holloway, you'll see how that storytelling prowess may have helped your family survive.

Throughout his life, Jonathan Scott Holloway heard stories.

One of the ones he remembers particularly was that which his father, an ex-military man, told Holloway on the way to school one fall day. It had something to do with fighting and how not to react. Holloway thought it was a strange thing then but, he says, "I discovered that there was more to this story than a father merely preparing his son for a world of inequality."

Many African Americans, Holloway claims, share stories of perseverance and strength through memoirs, stories, and anecdotes, and some of the most powerful tales are told in physical manifestations of museum or preserved buildings. Many of these stories serve as subtle (or not-so-subtle) warnings, lessons in getting along in a white world.

But, as he learned, stories can be edited or omitted entirely. There's a certain kind of unneeded "shame" in some facets of family history that may be hidden or forgotten. They're buried or, as Holloway says of his own family, a certain "branch of the family tree isn't even dead. It's simply gone."

Good or bad, this all serves as "the preservation of social status and authority," as well as being cautionary in nature for future generations. It helps in "establishing links, forged from common experience, to the larger black community" by sharing wisdom and lessons learned from the Jim Crow era and more recently. Still, "The editing... continues" and that, says Holloway, is detrimental to the black community.

"... the silences in a family's past can serve their purposes," he believes, "... but they also come with the risk of too little memory, of not knowing the value of sacrifice that enabled a better future in the first place."

In a way – at least for the casual reader – Jim Crow Wisdom was written backwards.

Author Jonathan Scott Holloway writes, in the second half of his book, about his family: recollections of learning stories he'd never heard, and finally understanding the tales that were ingrained at his core. It's semi-biographical, lively, and because of the nature of what he writes, the latter half of this book underscores its title.

But first, we must get through the first half, which is very, very academic. Holloway is a professor at Yale, after all, and the beginning of the books shows it. It's not unreadable, but it belies the spiritedness that the second half possesses.

Keep that in mind when you're reading this book, be willing to read it second-half-first, and you may find it to be quite eye-opening. For you, Jim Crow Wisdom might spur you to share a few good stories.

Rep. Ashford's Annual Christmas Party

State Representative Michael Ashford's annual Christmas party was held December 7 at the Gesu Sullivan Center, 2049 Parkside Blvd. Each year family, friends, and political supporters gather for fellowship and a good time.

Ashford says, "More importantly we come together to discuss what we can continue to do in the upcoming year to make sure we understand our commitment and our mission to those who serve our community."

Humbled by the fact that close to 200 people come out each year to show their support, Ashford says what makes this event unique is that money is raised to benefit a non-profit organization at Christmas time. This is also an opportunity for them to honor local heroes like Wanda Butts of the Josh Project.

Councilman-elect Larry Sykes, Ruth and Michael Ashford, State Sen. Edna Brown, TPS Superintendent Romules Durant
